Best Electronic Home—Level II
Technology with a Human Touch

■ DESIGN & INSTALLATION BY ALL AROUND TECHNOLOGY

What is an "electronic" home? Does it have a 16-zone distributed indoor/outdoor audio system with every imaginable source including 300 CDs with titles visible on wall-mounted touchpanels? Is it future-proof with video systems that are high-def and broad-band ready? Does it have a sophisticated whole-house Lutron lighting system and a Phast control system that runs the HVAC and security systems? All Around Technology, based in Bethesda, Maryland, says yes to all of the above and proves it in this exciting project.

Situated on the Potomac River, the house is a wonder of contemporary architecture and looks as futuristic as its technology. Functioning within its decor, is a 16-zone distributed audio system and a high-def and broad-band ready RF distribution network. A Phast control system operates audio/ video, lighting, security and seven zones of programmable/automated HVAC, as well as the massive CD library. Lighting control includes a whole-house Lutron lighting system, and the home is equipped with a digital telephone system that displays caller ID on the home's Phast keypads.

Audio/video was also an essential part of this project and top-of-the-line gear from Runco and Triad are located in the media room which is also controlled by Phast. Along with a flawless, rack-mounted installation with full rear-panel access, the client's needs were not just met, they were exceeded.

Thanks to All Around Technology's thoughtful design and attention to detail, the client now has a true electronic home. ■
